

Dr. V. Alex Keyahan

Dr. Kehayan is an educator, clinical psychologist, and author of three books, numerous articles, and classroom training manuals. He has a private practice in Ridgewood and Cliffside Park NJ specializing in Trauma, Anxiety and Adolescents. Furthermore, he is Director of Edu-Psych, Inc., a network providing professional training workshops and educational Program development to government agencies, emergency management organizations, healthcare facilities, and school systems. As Team Leader of the Bergen County (NJ) Trauma Response Team, Dr. Kehayan provides leadership and training.

Over the past 30 years he has developed, trained and field tested over 100 peer prevention programs in schools and agencies. Most recent peer programs include bully prevention, bicycle safety, anti-bias, violence prevention, and crisis awareness. His contributions to the National Association of Peer Program Professionals (NAPPP) include service as a member of The Board of Directors, Assistant Editor of the Peer Facilitator Quarterly, and, currently, Co-chair of the Professional Development Committee.

His most recent book, Resiliency in the Face of Disaster and Terrorism: 10 Things to Do to Survive a pocket guide to help people prevent, prepare and deal with traumatic events.